

Beowulf's Boasts

Write your own Anglo-Saxon boasts

Background

The epic poem, Beowulf, is over 3000 lines long! The poem has lots of examples of 'boasts' which were commonly used by Anglo-Saxon warriors. They would gather in the mead-hall and make these boasts shortly before a big battle. The Anglo-Saxons saw them as a symbol of the warrior's bravery; the bigger the better!

I will defeat the monster alone and with no weapons!

Only I could hope to defeat this monster!

Instructions

1. Write a speech which Beowulf might make the night before a battle.
2. Include plenty of boasts and remember, the bigger the better.
3. Explain why Beowulf's boasts were the reason for his defeat against the dragon.
